Biblical Storytelling: Luke 13: 10-17

August 21 — 11th Sunday after Pentecost
Sermon Title: "Faking It"

One of the things I have always liked about college football is how honest and upright the game is played. Yes, there are penalties but the officials usually keep a pretty tight rein on the players and their behavior. But alas, it appears now that college football has gone the way of the professional sports of soccer and basketball. Due to some teams using hurry up offenses, the defensive players on the opposing teams have gone to cheating by faking injuries in order to slow down the fast moving offense. This causes the officials to stop play so medical personnel can come to the aid of the player(s) who had faked the injuries in the first place.

In our Scripture reading for this Sunday, Jesus comes to the aid of a woman on the Sabbath who had been crippled for 18 years. He laid his hands on her and she was immediately healed. She began to praise God for her healing but the synagogue leader who was present told the lady and the congregation to come and be healed on the other six days. It was as if the leader was accusing the lady and probably Jesus for faking the whole thing simply because it was the Sabbath.

Hope to see you all on Sunday to see how Jesus handled the whole thing and how his opponents didn't come out of it looking too good.
