Luke 16:19-31

September 25 — 16th Sunday after Pentecost

Sermon Title: "Life or Death"

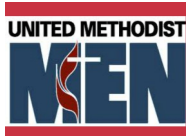

Scripture: Luke 16:19-31

I own and wear one of those watches that tells me some of the aspects of my physical activities throughout the day. It keeps up with my steps, calories burned, minutes of physical activity, along with other ways I stay active. I strive each day to meet some of the minimum goals found on my watch.

Most days I meet most of these goals and I do this by trying to walk everywhere I can. From the furthest parking spots in front of stores to doing laps in our fellowship hall, I try to rack up my step counts in the hope of being in better physical shape. One of the things I have noticed while I walk, is that I often forget what is going on around me.

In our Scripture reading for this Sunday, Jesus shared a parable with his disciples and some Pharisees. The parable was about a rich man who had the best of everything and a beggar who had nothing and only wanted the scraps from the rich man's tables. In our time together, we will look at what they had in their earthly lives and what they had received after both of them died.

I look forward to sharing the interaction between the two of them on Sunday morning. Hope to see you then.
